

The following position is open at Virginia Tech:

Reporting to the Director of InnovationSpace in the Technology-enhanced Learning and Online Strategies (TLOS) group, the Assistant Director for Emerging Academic Technologies and Spaces will contribute to the discovery and evaluation of emerging educational technologies and in the dissemination of this information through various outlets, such as faculty programs, consultations, and web resources. This individual will also conduct research into learning environments and provide consultations for learning spaces across the university. Additionally, the person in this role will serve as a hub for collaborations within TLOS and among the faculty and students in the university. Finally, a percentage of this person's time will be devoted to providing support to TLOS-related grant activities. Our ideal candidate will enjoy working with faculty and students, will demonstrate keen organizational skills, and will be familiar and comfortable working with emerging and innovative technologies. Teggin Summers ([\[log in to unmask\]](#), 540-231-0982) can be reached for more information.

Interested applicants can apply online (Job #: AP0140277): <https://listings.jobs.vt.edu/> (Administrative & Professional Faculty)